Taken Up By the Parents

A Terrible Tragedy at Buffalo Followed

MADDENED POLE SHOT HIS BOY AND A WOMAN

HE THEN BARRICADED HIMSELF

Two Suicides and Two Attempts That May be Successful Recorded at Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., April 13—A shooting affray in which a nine-year-old boy was killed and a woman mortally wounded, an attempted murder, two suicides and two attempts at suicide that may result fatally, occurred in this city last night.

Joseph Kwiatkowski, 51 years old, a representative Polish citizen, a locked up at police headquarters charged with shooting his landlady and killing his own nine-year-old boy.

Kwiatkowski formerly conducted an extensive business in one of the markets of the city.

His wife died about a year ago, leaving two children. Since the death of his wife business difficulties drove him to drink. For the last four months he has lived in rooms at 190 Colt street. The owner of the house Mrs. Tekla Wolinski, her husband and their children occupied the rear part of the building.

The children of the two families were constantly quarreling. Last night Kwiatkowski returned home and found the children in the usual turmoil. Mrs. Wolinski notified him that he would have to move, whereupon Kwiatkowski drew a revolver and began firing, backing out of the house as he did so. Mrs. Wolinski followed the infuriated Pole and grappled with him. He pointed the revolver at her breast and fired. She fell to the ground mortally wounded. Kwiatkowski fired several more shots, one of them striking his own nine-year-old son Peter, killing him instantly. A large crowd quickly gathered and Kwiatkowski retreated into the house locking the door behind him. Five officers in plain clothes who were on duty in the vicinity surrounded the house.

The Pole barricaded the doors and began firing through the windows at the officers. The policemen crept up alongside the house and endeavored to get a shot at the Pole. They fired about thirty shots through the windows, but failed to hit him. Kwiatkowski continued to fire until his ammunition was exhausted. The officers then battered down the front door. They found the Pole hiding in a closet. He gave desperate battle with a still, but before he finally was overpowered.

George Denning, 55 years old, had been separated from his wife for some time. He called upon her and tried to induce her to resume marital relations. She refused. He drew a revolver and fired. She fell to the floor in a faint, and believing he had killed her Denning ran away. His body was found later in the evening in a Salvation Army lodging house. He had taken poison.

Miss Marie Beers, 20 years old, an actress, took morphine. She is dead. Bertha Vaughn, 23 years old swallowed a dose of vitriol. Her condition is serious.

Miss Blanche Murphy, after a quarrel with an unknown man, who disappeared, swallowed a quantity of laudanum. She was taken to a hospital.

Disappointed Bride.

Port Jarvis, N. J., April 13—Because her husband paid no attention to her new Easter hat, Mrs. Clarence Bishop, a young bride, rushed from her house yesterday and drowned herself in the Neversink river. Her body was recovered. Mrs. Bishop was 17 years old, and was recently married.

The modern method of mixing coal gas with "water gas" greatly increases the amount of carbon monoxid in the gas supplied for illumination. Hence an alarming increase in the number of cases of carbon monoxid poisoning has recently been noticed.

By Death are Three of the People Who Fought in a Jacksonville Saloon

Athens, Ohio, April 13—Charles Riley, who was shot through the abdomen in the fight Friday night at Jacksonville, died Sunday at his home. Mrs. Minnie Skrotzky, who was shot in the head at the same time, can not survive. Seth Tinkham, who is in a Columbus hospital under bond of $500 for shooting with intent to kill, will have his bond raised to $1,500 on account of Riley's death, and as soon as he is able will be brought to Athens and the charge of murder in the second degree will be placed against him.

End to Strike.

The Hague, April 13—The first chamber Saturday unanimously passed the government's anti-strike measure which was the cause of the present strike of the transportation employees in Holland. The measure was passed by the second chamber at Rotterdam early in the week. The passing of the measure by the two chambers practically puts an end to the strike, inasmuch as the measure makes it illegal for employees of any public conveyance to strike.

LIGHTNING

Calculator Who Could do Any Sum Mentally, Died Sunday From Severe Mental Strain

Trenton, N. J., April 13—Wm. Valance, the famous lightning calculator, who could do any sum in mathematical calculation mentally, and with but an instant's hesitation, died here last night from severe mental strain, believed to be the result of his juggling with figures. He could give an instant answer to such problems as multiply 359, 487 by 4,641. Feats in algebra were his delight. Despite his marvelous ability he would not put it to commercial use.

HIT A LANDSLIDE

Pittsburg, Pa., April 13—The Pittsburg limited on the B. & O. railroad with 150 passengers aboard had a narrow escape from being wrecked last night. Going at the rate of 50 miles an hour, the train ran into a landslide. The fact that no persons were injured and the train kept on the track is nothing less than marvelous.

GEO. GOULD

Thinks the Present Year Will be One of Prosperity for the West—Crop Conditions

Lakewood, N. Y., April 13—George J. Gould returning from a careful survey of conditions in the west, is convinced the present era of prosperity will continue for at least another year. "In all my experience in the west," said Mr. Gould, "I have never seen wheat look as well as it does today. It is a bit too early to speak of corn or cotton, but as the soil is thoroughly water soaked these crops ought to thrive amazingly. The railroads will not have any trouble in moving the great wheat crop but I think we will all be short of cars in the fall if there is a big corn crop. I heard no talk of money shortage while I was in the west. The banks are holding their own balances in their vaults and they won't have to draw on New York for money to move the crops. From all indications, I can see a full year of prosperity ahead for the west."

CONGRESS

WILL CHANGE THE SHERMAN AND ANTI-TRUST LAWS

So Declares the Leading Boston Administration Paper—Republican Leaders Ready to Do It.

Boston, Mass., April 13—The Advertiser, a paper close to the administration, says:

"It can be said positively that if the Sherman anti-trust act has been correctly interpreted by the St. Paul decision in the Northern Securities Company case, the Sherman anti-trust act will be radically amended by the present Congress.

"This statement is made on assurances from so many of the party leaders in the House and Senate that it is as authoritative as if it had been already announced by the President.

"Messages have gone to such men as Senator Spooner of Wisconsin, Hanna of Ohio, Allison of Iowa, Aldrich of Rhode Island and Burrows of Michigan in the Senate and Daltzel of Pennsylvania, Payne of New York, Hopkins of Illinois, Grosvenor of Ohio and Tawney of Minnesota in the House of Representatives.

"Perhaps the largest contributor to the campaign fund of 1890 in this state said yesterday that if this decision stood unquestioned for a year the harm done to President Roosevelt's chances for re-election would be incalculable.

"But I think you will find," he added, "that it will not hold without some change. If the St. Paul decision is correctly interpreted as wiping out all the railroad consolidations that have been made since 1890, it simply means that the law which has been construed that way will be changed by Congress."

St. Paul, Minn., April 13—Notice of appeal in the Great Northern Securities merger case has been filed.

THE DECISION

Not to be Used Against Trusts in a Sweeping Manner.

Washington, April 13—Everything that can be done in administration circles to lighten the effect of the Northern Securities decision will be done. "As I understand the intent of the Attorney General," said a leading Republican senator, "there's to be no such sweeping move against other railroad or industrial combinations as the public seems to expect. In fact I'm in a position to say positively that nothing of the kind will be done. The St. Paul decision is to be used as a club over two of the most unpopular trusts beef and coal. Roosevelt knew the decision was coming and went to Yellowstone to be away from the messengers until he worked out some broad policy on the trust question."

Geronimo, the famous Apache chief, now in his 84th year, will be allowed by the government authorities to attend the Indian congress in New York next summer.

Between Big Four and C. D. & M.

Judge Coyner Refused An Injunction.

THE TROUBLE OVER A CROSSING

Big Four Engineers Arrested Sunday—Case is to be Fought Out in the Courts

Delaware, Ohio, April 13—War is on in Delaware between the Big Four and the Columbus, Delaware and Marion electric road. The electric road has been engaged for the past week in putting down double track and when they attempted to lay the frog at the Junction of the Big Four, trouble began. At the first attempt of the trolley road to touch the crossing two switch engines and a force of 100 employees were on the scene and upheld the work as fast as it was accomplished. Several minor encounters occurred and a general fight was narrowly averted. A squad of police arrested the engineers and firemen of the two engines and the Big Four yard master, charged with blocking a crossing.

Sunday afternoon Engineer R. H. Simpson of Springfield, arrived in town and a conference with General Manager H. A. Fisher, of the C. D. & M., and city officials was held, the interested parties agreeing to quit work until 12 o'clock midnight. There was a scramble for an injunction by both roads when the clock struck 12.

Judge Coyner refused to issue either read an injunction at 12 o'clock, but will issue each party one at 3 o'clock this afternoon and hear the cases immediately settling the difficulty permanently.

Both roads had their forces at the crossing but no trouble occurred and they were called off shortly after midnight to await the decision of the court.

HEAVY RAIN

Stopped Train and Passengers Had to Walk Across the Country to a Station

Pittsburg, April 13—Shortly after the heavy rain of yesterday afternoon ceased, a report gained currency that the evening accommodation train Cornopolis for Imperial at 5 o'clock, had been lost in the flood of water that poured down the valley and many hives were in danger. Owing to the absence of communication the worst was feared until early this morning when the train reached a point within a mile and a half of Imperial. The engineer discovered a large section of the roadbed washed away. To proceed or return was impossible on account of the flooded condition. After the rain subsided the passengers left the train and walked to Imperial across the country. The road, owned and operated by the Pittsburg Coal Company, will be tied up for several days, pending repairs.

PRIEST

TO TEST HIS WIRELESS TELEGRAPH SYSTEM

Father Joseph Murgas Will Establish Station Under Patronage of New Jersey Central Railroad.

Wilkesbarr, April 13—The eyes of many scientific men will, for the summer at least, be turned upon Mountain Park, an elevated point near this city, where Father Joseph Murgas will at once install an experiment station for the practical testing of his recently perfected system of wireless telegraphy.

The station has been provided by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, officials of which have become convinced that the system devised by the inventive priest possesses merit.

Father Murgas says that he has sent messages seventy miles by land and he believes he can send them much farther by sea, and that when he has perfected his system he will be able to get better results than Marconi at less expense.

Father Murgas was educated in Vienna and has studied electricity for 20 years, being a fellow of the Societe Electrotechnique of Vienna.

For four years he has devoted himself to the development of wireless telegraphy. He constructed at his home adjoining the church an apparatus and has obtained excellent results at the expenditure of less than $4,000.

He was born in Los Angeles and when a mere infant lost his eyesight through an attack of scarlet fever.

CHAOS FOR WATERED STOCK

The opinion is growing, says a New York dispatch that the adverse decision in the case of the Northern Securities company, while a staggering blow to the railroad combination, will be even more far reaching in its effect. In his brief for the defendants Former Attorney General John W. Griggs said that an adverse decision would "taint" with illegality unnumbered millions of capital stock and bonds issued upon railroad mergers and connections, and that "financial chaos would result." He reiterates this statement now.

Blowing the Feather.

A game for young folks is played with a feather. The party is arranged in several groups of seven or eight each, seated in a ring and as close together as possible. For each group is a feather. This is tossed in the air in the center of the ring. It is the business of the little players to keep the feather in the air by blowing every time it comes near. The effort is so ridiculous that the children laugh. When they laugh, they cannot blow, and the feather is apt to settle in the lap of the merriest child. In this case she has to retire from the ring. It is of course her interest to make the other children laugh. As the rings decrease they are consolidated, and so the game continues until only one person is left, who of course is the winner. There are few games so unpretentious and few that can give as much fun to a lively lot of children.

He Couldn't Say Breakfast.

Mrs. Laura Richards, one of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's daughters, in some reminiscences of her childhood tells the following of her brother Harry: When about four years old, he had the habit of summoning his father to breakfast and not being able to say the word would announce, "Brescott is ready!" This excited mirth among the other children, which he never could stand. Accordingly one morning he appeared at the door of the dressing room and said solemnly, "Papa, your food is prepared!"

Why He Got Up Early.

"I hope all you little boys," said the teacher, "commence the week right by getting up early Monday morning." "Yes'm," replied little Johnny; "I always love to get up early Monday mornin'!" "And you feel all the better for it, don't you, Johnny?" "Yes'm. That's the mornin' we have pancakes!"

THE FLIGHT OF AN EMPRESS

(Original.)

The second empire had fallen, and the Empress Eugenie, like her predecessor, Marie Antoinette, awaited the coming of a mob. The shouts of the majesties already rang in the garden of the Tuileries. Then the crowd broke into the reserved garden before the palace and tore down the imperial eagles. Now comes the cry of "Vive la republique!"

"Let me entreat your majesty," said Prince Metternich, the Austrian ambassador, "to leave the palace."

"I add my entreaties," said Chevalier Nigra, the Italian ambassador, "to those of his excellency."

It was a critical moment. The empress was in the rose colored room among her attendants of the service of honor, who were trembling to be relieved from duty and to save themselves. The empress declined to leave.

"Madame," said her secretary, Pietri, "your refusal to depart will cause a general massacre of those whose duty it is to remain with you."

"General Millinet," said the empress, "can you defend the palace without bloodshed?"

"I fear not, madame."

"Then all is over."

When those in attendance perceived that her majesty had yielded, there was a quick sigh of relief, though renewed yells at the front of the palace brought a terror lest the flight had been delayed too long. All remembered the breaking into the palace at Versailles of the mob from which Marie Antoinette had fled and the massacre of the Swiss guard that defended her. Breathlessly the service of honor waited Eugenie's departure. First she must bid farewell to them. When this had been finished, she left the room with Pietri, Mme. Lebreton and the two ambassadors and passed through the galleries leading to the Louvre. At the same moment the mob was breaking into the front of the palace. Suddenly Pietri found the way blocked by a locked door. Pale as a ghost, he cried: "The key! The key!"

For a moment it seemed that they were lost, but suddenly one of the attendants ran forward with the key and unlocked the door. Hurrying past pictures that the rulers of France had been centuries in collecting, the party made an exit at the end of the palace farthest from the mob and entered the place on which stood the Church of St. Germain l'Auxerrois. The whole city was in an uproar. A mob was passing down Rue Rivoli; another was coming from an opposite direction. Metternich, who had left his carriage on the Rue Rivoli when he entered the Tuileries, went to seek it. A street boy, recognizing Eugenie, shouted, "There's the empress!" Fortunately a cab was driven past. Nigra stopped it and, opening the door, put in the empress and Mme. Lebreton, then turned to the boy and endeavored to stop his mouth. The driver of the cab, seeing the terrible wave of revolution pouring down the street, belabored his horse with the stump of a whip and drove—no one knew where. When Metternich returned, the empress had gone. She was deprived of the two ambassadors' protection, but she was safer where she was.

On went the cab with the woman who for years had been the first lady of France, now a fugitive from a crowd of her infuriated subjects. Farther and farther their hideous yells were left behind till at last they had become a confused murmur. Then the cabman drew rein and asked where he should drive the occupants. Where? The question was the most serious Eugenie had ever been called upon to answer in all her romantic life. Where? To the home of one of the favorites of her late court? Should she seek those of the diplomatic corps? Would it be safe to rely upon one prominent in the corps legislatif, the commander of the army? All of these were passed in review and dismissed. Some old friend must temporarily hide her. Deciding upon one, she told the cabman to drive to her home. The friend was not there. The fugitive was driven to the house of another and another. None was at home. They were either mingling in the exciting events or were hiding from those who had known them for court favorites.

Then a happy thought struck the empress. In trying to remember one she could trust who did not live far from where she was at the time it occurred to her that the house of an American dentist, Dr. Evans, was but a short distance away. She gave the coachman an order to drive there.

Arriving at the house, she sent in word that a lady wished to see the doctor.

"Tell the lady that I am about to sit down to dinner."

"The lady says she must see you," said the messenger.

Evans answered the summons, a summons from the ex-empress of France.

With all the respect he had ever paid her when at the height of her power Dr. Evans took her in and with his wife befriended her in every possible way. This was fraught with danger. Had it become known that the empress was in his house he and his family would have had to suffer with her, for his flag would not have protected them against an irresponsible mob.

Then came the flight to the coast. Evans protecting his imperial guest by the way, the crossing of the English channel, safety in England. There the deposed empress lives on her estate. If she found an asylum among Englishmen, it was an American who enabled her to escape her bloodthirsty subjects and find a their shores in safety.

ROSALE TREAT THURBER.

HANDSOME EMBROIDERIES.

They Figure In All the Modish Gowns This Season.

The very newest form of embroidery consists of medallions and lozenge shaped motifs surrounded by lace, and the more elaborate trimmings have very elaborate frames of lace. Clever girls with little pocket money might do worse than copy these embroidered galleons with floral silk or ribbons, as circles, diamonds and ovals can be cut of broche or pompadour designs in silk and then feather-stitched or button-holed with colored silk and laid on fine lace.

Take for instance some medallion lace with one large oval and a small circle or square alternately, then a pompadour silk with one very small spray or flower and one large one. These can be cut out slightly smaller than the lace medallions, lined with muslin, worked around and applied on the lace, and there is a charming trimming quite of the latest style.

Painted silks can be used in the same manner, or fancy ribbon, satin and gauze, and as embroidered galleon is by no means inexpensive the result is worth a little trouble, and the work is so fanciful that it is suited for a drawing room.

The cut shows an embroidered coffee jacket and one of the latest petticoats. JUDIE CHOLLET.

Jaunty Little Suits—Cape Collars and Sleeves.

The most important person at present is the tailor, for he is evolving any quantity of chic and becoming little suits.

Very smart are the little short coats in black or tau worn with a skirt of walking length.

Of equal importance with the cape collar is the sleeve, which every day becomes more intricate and elaborate. In soft materials the big sleeves look charming and add of a fair amount of tuck and cringing at the top, full fur full from the elbow to the wrist, but in cheap, warm materials, however an adherence to plainer styles is to be commended.

House sleeves of silks, muslins and other such fine fabrics are either simply gauged at the top, tucked by hand or, more effectively, still, inserted with silk velvet.

The cut shows a visiting dress of pastel blue color trimmed with a fringe, collar, cuffs and waistband of black panne. JUDIE CHOLLET.

A Reward and a Fine.

A few years ago, owing to the serious depredations of rat catchers on the banks of the Thames, the authorities were compelled to issue notice boards offering a reward of £5 for information, payable on conviction of the offender. Not many days after the notice appeared an Irishman was caught and, being brought before the magistrate, was ordered to pay a fine and costs amounting altogether to £2. Not having the needed, Pat went into retirement at the expense of the country. The next morning, however, another son of Erin appeared at the prison, paying the fine, liberated his friend. The governor, having been in the court on the previous day, recognized the "liberator" as the principal witness against the accused. This puzzled him; and he asked for an explanation. "Well," said Pat, "it's like this, sorr: Tim and myself were hard up, and, seeing the notice, Tim agreed to be caught. I gave information against him, and this mornin' I drewed the liberty, and, now ye're paid, we've £15 to start the world with."—London Advertiser.

Encouragement of a Great Singer. Grassano, the great Italian singer, was very much interested in the young girl, among her relatives and always ready to encourage any talent she could find in any of them. One day a novice was brought to her with the unpromising words, "She is a spoiled contralto on the stage." But the singer listened while the young girl began her frightened trials, when suddenly Grassano caught her in her arms with delight. "Why, you are not a contralto," she said, "but the finest soprano in the world. You are ten times stronger than mine. Study well. You want none of my help. There is a rich bank in your throat." The little singer was none other than Gilda Gray.

Granville, Ohio, April 13—Nearly all the preparations have been completed for the banquet and social time to be held by Altamaha lodge 296, Knights of Pythias next Thursday evening. There is no more prosperous lodge of Knights of Pythias in Licking county than Altamaha lodge, and the members are all taking an interest in building up the membership. The affair of Thursday night promises to be one of great enjoyment.

Mrs. I. H. DeBow and Mrs. Jane Evans, who have been visiting friends in Columbus for some days, returned home on Saturday night.

Fred Buxton has been quite sick for the past several days.

Prof. Carl Burrer spent Saturday and Sunday in Johnstown.

Flowers and music predominated in all the churches. At the Methodist church children's services were held in the evening and a fine program was carried out.

Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Linn of Columbus spent Sunday in the village.

M. M. King, the popular jeweler and optician, left for Columbus this morning to attend the State meet of the Ohio Opticians Association, which is being held in that city today. A banquet will be held at the Neil House this evening, at which short talks will be made by some of the most prominent opticians in the state.

Mrs. Mary Williams and her grandson, George Pullman Minton, who have been visiting at the home of her son, Mr. Burton Case for some time, left for their home in Westfield, N. Y., this morning, after having had a very pleasant visit.

THE A. P. U.

Newark Council No. 1 of the American Protective Union held its regular meeting on last Monday evening April 6, with a full attendance of the members. A large number of candidates were initiated and at the close of the meeting an entertainment was given the program consisting of quite interesting talks from the Supreme Officers present Hon. W. E. Miller, W. G. Taafel, E. L. Weisgerber and Rev. J. C. Schindel, music both vocal and instrumental, closing with a very pretty drill by some of the members making the letters on the floor of the A. P. U., with Captain Belle Mullinix, who should be congratulated on her ability as drill master. At the close of the program refreshments were served.

Every member returned home declaring that they had never spent a more pleasant evening and saying that the American Protective Union stands at the head of the rank of all fraternal societies for sociability as well as benefits. The members of Newark council wish a speedy recovery of Friend Ella Abell who was reported very ill this week. We all hope to have her at her post in the council shortly.

ADDRESS

Before High School by Dr. Chas. P. King on "The Tyranny of Fashion."

The pupils of the Newark high school were favored with a short and practical address by Dr. C. P. King, on "The Tyranny of Fashion, or What are Some of the Causes of Early Decay in American Women?"

He said in part: "The most potent of these causes, the cause more potent than all others combined is the corset, which deprives the heart and lungs of their functions, and thus prevents the circulation of the blood and lowers the vitality of the individuals. This article of female apparel is opposed to all Grecian and Roman models of beauty and taste. No representation of the ancient goddesses or nymphs or muses of graces would give the least idea that they ever wore corsets. Why then will our American girls and women cling to this hideous device which robs them of beauty, grace and health? Why can they not rise above the demands of fashion and preserve their health and freshness with free breathing and abundant exercise in the open air?"

Pulmonary consumption is estimated to be the cause of 100,000 deaths in this country every year, and unless something is done to arrest the ravages of this disease, the most serious degeneration of the race is to be feared. This disease is the special product of our civilization, or rather of the indolence and luxury which have attached themselves to our civilized state, as it was unknown among the Indians. American women are also sufferers from dyspepsia, insomnia, nervousness and a host of other complaints, nearly all of which can be traced to their unhealthy mode of dress and general habits of life.

The high heeled shoes which throw the weight of the body on the toes and in fact thus destroy the grace and agility of movement and seriously affect the health of women, should be discarded and our women should not be ashamed to wear the healthy broad soles that are worn by their English cousins.

The poisonous cosmetics which destroy the complexion of women and rob them of the beauty which nature has given them, cannot be too highly condemned. If women really desire a beautiful complexion, let them seek it by consulting nature and living in conformity with her laws.

Only in this way can we hope to see our women exalted to the position in society, to that sphere of gracious and beneficent influence for which they were designed by the Creator.

Mrs. Dorothy Hose was born in Germany, April 24, 1812, and died April 9, 1903, aged 90 years, 11 months and 16 days. She leaves five children to mourn their loss, Mr. Hose and seven children having died some years ago. Mrs. Hose was a devoted Christian being the oldest member of the German Presbyterian church. She has lived the many years of her life in a most kind and devoted wife and was always prepared to meet her God, her motto being "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear. The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid. One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek, that I may dwell in the house of the Lord forever, to behold the beauty of the Lord and to inquire in his temple, for unto thy hand I commit my spirit, O Lord God of truth." Her last words were "Nearer, my God, to Thee." Funeral services were held Sunday April 12, at 2 p. m. at the German Presbyterian church, conducted by Rev. Wm. A. Berger.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

FORGED ORDER

PRESENTED TO WM. C. MILLER,
FURNITURE MAN

Goods Recovered and No Prosecution
May be Made—Harry H. Baird's
Name Used.

Mrs. Josie Johnson, who lives at 119 Canal street, nearly succeeded in perpetrating a $60 forgery on W. C. Miller, the well known furniture dealer, on Saturday, but as the attempt was foiled, Mr. Miller has not yet made up his mind to prosecute the woman.

Mrs. Johnson came to the store on Friday afternoon and showed an order purporting to be signed by ex-County Commissioner H. H. Baird, of Patastala, saying that he had money in his possession belonging to Mrs. Johnson and would pay for any goods ordered by her. She also showed a letter written to herself with the name of H. H. Baird signed to it, telling her to get what furniture she wanted, but not to be extravagant.

On the strength of these signatures, Mr. Miller sold and delivered to Mrs. Johnson, a bed room suit, couch, table, stand, chairs, and other articles, amounting to about $60.

The goods were delivered Friday afternoon, and on Saturday morning Mrs. Johnson asked D. F. Cole, the second hand dealer, to make her a price on some furniture. He went to the house, took the furniture to his store and told Mrs. Johnson she could get her money by calling there.

Mr. Cole, however, was suspicious, and telephoned Mr. Miller and the latter notified Mr. Baird, who pronounced the signatures forgeries.

Mr. Miller got his furniture back, and he may not prosecute the woman, who tried to defraud him.

EASTER

Services at Y. M. C. A. Sunday Afternoon—Fine Program—Prof. Williams Spoke

The Special Easter Service at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon was all that had been hoped for. It was an open meeting and the hall was filled with men and women who were attracted by the unusually strong program that had been announced. We feel assured in saying that no one was disappointed. The St. Paul Ladies' Quartette rendered a fine program consisting of three quartette numbers, a duet by Mrs. King and Miss Anna

NOW is the time the blood needs cleansing, revitalizing—charged with animation, life, vitality.

Hagee's Cordial of Cod Liver Oil (with Hypophosphites) of pure line and quality is particularly a spring remedy. It not only cleanses the blood, increases the number of red corpuscles, but reconstructs the wasted tissues consumed by winter's rigors.

It sends a thrill of vigor and activity bounding to every part of the body. It puts on new and healthy flesh; makes you buoyant—cheerful—active—strong.

Hagee's Cordial is a thin, palatable tonic without that greasy, fishy taste of ordinary cod liver oils.

Sold by all druggists. Prepared by Kahrmen Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Cross, and a solo by Mrs. King. The ladies are especially strong as a quartette, their voices blending together beautifully. The duet by Mrs. King and Miss Anna Cross, entitled "A Little While," was greatly appreciated. Probably the most appreciated number was the hymn, "I know That My Redeemer Liveth," sung by Mrs. King. This was certainly one of the sweetest songs that has been heard in Taylor Hall this year.

Prof. Williams spoke of the resurrection of our Lord, giving the subject a very practical turn, answering the two questions, What is the risen Christ to us? What are we to Him? He delivered the address in his characteristic and forceful manner, introducing many witticisms which he never failed to turn in such a way as to plainly illustrate his point.

SUDDENLY

MRS. HONORA SULLIVAN DIED ON MONDAY MORNING

Heart Trouble is Said to Have Been the Cause of Her Death—Funeral
Not Arranged

Mrs. Honora Sullivan, one of the oldest, best known and most highly esteemed women of Newark, died very suddenly at her home, 399 Barclay street, Monday morning. The deceased was the widow of the late Timothy Sullivan, had not been feeling very well for several days, but no particular alarm was felt regarding her condition as she was able to be up and around. About 7 o'clock a. m., however, she grew very sick and in a few moments was dead, death having been caused by heart trouble. She leaves six daughters and one son to mourn her death. They are Mrs. James Rafferty of Mt. Vernon, Mrs. Edward Floyd and Mrs. John Kennedy of this city, Mrs. Thomas Crum of Columbus, Mrs. Bruce Maloney of Zanesville, and Miss Sullivan a well known molder of the Sullivan a well known molder of the B. & O. shops. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been perfected. The members of the family have the sympathy of all their friends in their affliction.

Mr. Covert Resigns.

Mr. Ira C. Covert, who has been Superintendent of the Newark Gas Light and Coke company, for the past five years has moved to Paducah, Ky., where he has accepted a position with the Paducah Gas and Electric company.

To show the high esteem in which Mr. Covert was held, a fine umbrella was presented to him by the employees of the Newark Gas Light and Coke company Saturday.

The Baseball Season.

Signs are daily multiplying. That the time is near at hand. When the swarming of the horseshoe will be heard throughout the land. There remains no cause for doubting. For 'tis published far and wide That the magnates got together And the schedule's ratified.

All the heroes of the diamond. Have their names to contracts signed; Nerve supplies have been chosen And their duties well defined. All the clubs have picked out mascots And words of influence to wield. And when comes the time for playing They'll be potent on the field.

Amateurs are hard at practice With the bat and with the ball In the hope that from the magnates They will some day get a call. Cunning wretches are plotting Largest bets to make in the fence. So that they can watch proceedings And be free from all expense.

Ever stronger grows excitement Among the masses, cracks and fans As they take their part in the game. In the baseball magnates' plans. And they're freely looking forward To the time, now near at hand, When they'll to the games be going And there'll be no rest to the band.

Soon all ordinary topics That have been so long discussed Will be dropped as mere trifles Or far to the rear be thrust. For in office, shop and drawing And where thousands of boys and men Other things they'll be forgetting And have baseball as their theme. Theodore H. Boone, Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

GILLETT

IS MAKING STRONG FIGHT FOR NOMINATION

Circular Letter Talks About "Life Tenure in Office"—Guilbert and the Railroads of Ohio.

In his Sunday letter on State politics to the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, the Columbus correspondent has the following to say of Col. M. M. Gillett, his candidacy for state auditor, and his campaign methods:

The most entertaining spectacle on the political stage just now is the rivalry of Colonel Melville M. Gillett, of Newark, and State Auditor Walter S. Guilbert, of Caldwell, for place on the Republican state ticket.

Guilbert is strongly entrenched in the favor of the party leaders, but this has not at all dismayed the staff Colonel, who is attacking the incumbent's gamely. In attacking the third term idea Gillett is appealing to one of the strongest political prejudices in Ohio, but he is not content with this line of attack only, but has attacked Guilbert's official record.

In circulars which Gillett's typewriting bureau has sent out from Newark the State Auditor is charged with favoritism to the railroads. The charge is not put in amplified form, but rather in the way of innuendo. The circular, which is headed "The Daily American Tribune, Addison C. Dickinson, proprietor, Newark, Ohio, April 2, 1903," and which is signed, "A. C. Dickinson," after advocating the nomination of Gillett as "Licking County's candidate," talks about the danger of "life tenure in office," and closes with this sentence: "Mr. Guilbert's close identification with the railroads does not argue in his favor, but strongly against him."

This charge has aroused Mr. Guilbert's friends, who, having ascertained that he doesn't own any railroad stock, and is not a director or officer of any railroad, declare that the Gillett bureau stuff can only be intended to convey the innuendo the impression that as a State officer he has favored the railroads in taxation matters.

They declare that if he is a friend of the railroads he treats his friends shabbily. For it is a matter of state history that Guilbert devised the plan to raise revenue whereby much against their own wishes the railroads of Ohio are now paying $1,015,885.80 each year which they did not pay when Guilbert became the chief taxing official of the State. Incidentally almost $400,000 is paid in excise taxes by other public service corporations, which were not paying a cent when Guilbert was a private citizen.

When the State was on the edges of bankruptcy, Governor McKinley assigned to Guilbert the difficult task of pulling the State finances out of the slough of despond. Guilbert concocted the scheme of taxing corporations, which Attorney General Richards formulated into legal phraseology, which stood the test of the courts.

The railroads protested vigorously. Guilbert said to them: "The State must have money and we are not going to raise the tax levy a single penny. We must raise the money needed from you and the other big corporations, and you will have to stand it." Though Guilbert is by descent a French Huguenot from the Isle of Guernsey, he talked to the railroads like "a Dutch uncle," and they came off their perch.

Some of the replies the Gillett bureau is receiving indicate that these facts are pretty well understood about the State.

A Northern Ohio Republican of influence wrote: "I see that you say 'Mr. Guilbert's close identification with the railroads does not argue in his favor, but strongly against him.' The remark is intensely unjust. I know the tendency and inclination of people to charge these things. I innuendo. It is not fair. Mr. Guilbert is a man of high character and I do not believe Mr. Gillett's (Gillett's) candidacy will be advanced any by attacking Mr. Guilbert in this manner."

"A State Auditor close identification with railroads argues very much in his favor so long as he has a honest and upright record that I believe Mr. Guilbert has. The State Auditor has official duty to perform in connection with the roads; so also has a County Auditor. It does not seem to me that all of these are dishonest and corrupt."

The SPORTING WORLD

Keeler Will Benefit Americans.
"Wee Willie" Keeler, the crack outfielder and batsman secured from Brooklyn by the new American league club in New York, is one of the most popular ball players in the country. He is a star drawing card and will attract hundreds of dollars into the coffers of the American league.

Keeler was formerly captain of Ed Hanlon's team, succeeding Joe Kelley.

WILLIE KEELER OF THE NEW YORK AMERICANS.

but as the Brooklyn club did not see fit to pay the high salary he required for his services in 1903 Keeler determined to accept the offer of Ban Johnson, who well realized the little fellow's value and resolved to obtain him at any cost.

President Joseph Gordon of the New York Americans is very confident that his team will finish close to the top in the pennant race.

Joe Corbett to Play Ball Again.
In view of proposed opposition Manager Morley of Los Angeles, Cal., has signed Joe Corbett, the brother of Jim Corbett, by wire at one of the largest salaries ever paid a ball player in this country.

The contract calls for $5,000 for Corbett's work and stipulates that he shall not pitch more than one game a week for the thirty-six weeks of the playing season. It is also agreed that Corbett shall not appear in any other position than in the pitching department and shall have the privilege of keeping in touch with his business in Frisco when not actually engaged in doing twirling for his team.

This means that Corbett will receive nearly $140 for every time he steps on a ball field, or practically $1 for every ball he delivers. This sum is exceeded by not more than three players in the country.

Corbett has been out of the game for several years, although he has had many offers from clubs in the east. He made his record with the Baltimore under Ned Hanlon and helped that club win two pennants. Then he retired and resisted all efforts to drag him back into the game until this spring.

Room in Western Golf?
There is a possibility that the playing of the women's national championship at Chicago this year will result in increasing the interest in golf among the women of the west.

The interest in golf among the women in the west has not been less during the last few years than it has been in the east, and doubtless the new association which is to be organized this season by the women connected with the forty-two clubs forming the Western Golf association will have the same beneficial results on the standard of the play in the west as have the associations in the east upon the play coming under their jurisdiction.

Ireland's Big Auto Race.
All Ireland is rejoicing because parliament favors the act legalizing the great international motor race in Ireland. It is believed the race will prove the dawn of better times in the Emerald Isle. It will induce hundreds of rich English and American automobilists to visit Ireland in the coming summer, who will be charmed with the scenery and life and be tempted to return annually.

All Ireland is excited over the prospects of the great race. Hotel keepers are preparing to receive swarms of visitors. Visiting motorists will find the island exceedingly quiet politically.

WHAT IS WORN.

Separate Waists—Bare Arms No Longer the Fashion.

Bare arms, except for very full dress occasions, are not seen so much. Even ball gowns boast some suggestion of a sleeve. The best frocks are a perfect harmony of color even to the trimmings.

The intelligent observer cannot but be struck by the improvement in skirt waists. The blouse is no longer a sloping, untidy garment, but even those which are composed of the most expensive fabrics have a certain style of their own, are extremely well cut about the neck and shoulders and have plenty of fullness across the bust, which used to be the chief fault with the ready made waist.

Unless a woman wants something very exclusive and expensive she had better buy her waists ready made at one of the big stores.

Fancy wraps will be a feature of the summer season. Now that the tailor made is no longer considered dressy, gowns will be worn for all important occasions, and this makes it necessary to have some light, becoming wrap of lace or silk to protect the wearer's shoulders on cool days.

Many of the smartest new wraps are made entirely of all over lace trimmed with fringe and lined with mousseline de sole or silk.

The cut shows a smart silk waist made with a fancy embroidered collar and a soft falling down the front. This would be well carried out in pale blue silk.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

It is found that solid tires can well be substituted for pneumatic ones on the rear wheels of automobiles. The cushion tire has been the weak point in automobiles and as they cost $50 to $75 each, a saving of them has been the heaviest item of expense.

CULTIVATION OF BULBS.

Secretary Wilson Tells of Experiments With Flowers.

PRODUCTION OF RARE BLOOMS.

Agricultural Department Experts Have Found a Place Where Tulips, Narcissuses and Hyacinths Can Be Grown as Successfully as in Holland—Industry That Exceeds $1,000,000 Yearly.

The president's cabinet at a recent meeting heard a lively account from the secretary of agriculture, Mr. Wilson, about the successful development of a new industry in the far northwest, says the Washington Post. His department has been expending about $5,000 annually for hyacinths, narcissuses and tulips from Holland. The Dutch have been experts for generations in growing those flowers, and it is historic how the production of tulips once became such a craze in the little kingdom that certain choice kinds were actually worth their weight in gold. The imports into the United States of bulbs of these three flowers, which come packed in buckwheat hulls, are understood to exceed $1,000,000 annually.

The department has been experimenting for about five years to find a climate in the United States where the bulbs for these beautiful blooms could be produced quite as well as in Holland and has at last succeeded. This came about in unexpected fashion. Some Dutch who went to northwest Washington to live undertook there to raise the same choice flowers with which they had beautified their surroundings in Holland. There, under the beneficent breath of the Chinook winds, hyacinths, narcissuses and tulips flourished even better than in the choicest spots of Holland. There are heavy rains winter and summer in that section of Washington state, moisture is constantly in the air, and the soil at sea level is rich, all the climatic conditions closely resembling those in Holland.

But these Dutch immigrants wrote back to Holland about the success they were having with the flowers, from which at home a vast deal of money was being made, and it was from Holland that the reports reached the agricultural department. That led to investigation and further experiments, which have fully satisfied the department that Washington state, and part of Oregon are capable of producing all of these bulbs that the flower beds and the greenhouses of the east can utilize every year. The only difficulty now in the way is one of freight rates, for the Dutch of Holland can still put their flower bulbs down in New York at a cheaper figure than costs to transport the same articles overland from the Pacific coast.

The bulbs from Holland are serviceable in the eastern flower beds only for one year. If one strives to secure flowers from them a second year, it is found that the blossoms are of a very inferior quality. Hitherto the department has pulled up the bulbs after one year's crop and thrown them on the rubbish heap, except recently some experiments have been made with sending these old bulbs into Washington state, where it has been found that they produce beautiful flowers the second year.

The cabinet members were much interested in Secretary Wilson's statement about these experiments, which have been conducted under the immediate direction of Professor E. T. Galloway. The department is also conducting experiments with Easter lilies, which now have to be brought from the Bermudas annually to the extent of about 500,000. Climates have been found in the south which are favorable to the production of these beautiful lilies, but the chief difficulty has been to make them flower early enough for the Easter season. However, there is reason to hope that the lily bulbs can be developed artificially by treatment in cold storage, so that the flowers can be brought out in season.

Aunt Dinah's OLD VIRGINIA Herb Tea
FOR MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS.

Every woman who has a daughter knows well the anxiety and worry which always comes at that period of life when girlhood merges into womanhood.

AUNT DINAH'S OLD VIRGINIA HERB TEA is of the greatest assistance to nature in bringing about this change without disturbing the natural functions of the system. It will keep the roses in a girl's cheeks. It is a strengthening tonic and prevents that tendency to decline which so often endangers the lives of girls at this critical point in development.

This Herb Tea is likewise of corresponding value and assistance to mothers and matrons at the end of this period. The use of the Tea will, at the time of the change of life, prevent endless pain and worry. A woman will enter the "evening of life" with scarcely the knowledge that the change has occurred.

Try this Tea and profit by the experience of many grateful women who have tested its merits.

The Baseball Score

A GAIN we see the score in print. The good, old baseball score. With names and figures all in line. As in the days of yore. For way down south, in Dixie land, The boys are doing stunts. Again connecting with the ball. For liners, flies and bunts.

Of course the games now being played Are not the real thing. Because the heroes widely famed Are merely practicing. They're getting muscles into trim So they can freely play. And training eyes so they can swat The balls that come their way.

But just the same the practice score With eagerness we scan To get a line on playing skill And work of every man. We note with joy the wondrous catch, Swift covering of ground, And chuckle when one hits so hard He goes the whole way round.

We look along the lines to see The record each has made. And note the letters which explain Position each has played. We analyze the pitchers' work And that of catchers, too. Concluding we have got a team That certainly will do.

'Tis thus anticipation whets Desire for real games. The time when rival teams will meet And strive to clinch their claims. But as we cannot speed that time, With patience we must pore Through stories of the stunts down south And scan the practice score.—Theodore H. Boice in Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

"The sultan of Turkey," said Mrs. Henpeck after taking another glance at the item to be sure that she had made no mistake, "has seventy-eight wives."

"I wonder," the sad faced little man answered as he looked far away and sighed, "if there's an Easter in the Turkish calendar."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wheat Raising.

"I'd like to go out in the country and see them raising wheat."

"Why, you don't have to go out in the country. They raise thousands of bushels right here in town."

"Absurd! How do they raise wheat in town?"

"Why, in grain elevators."—Philadelphia Record.

Novel View of the Foolish Virgins.

Bishop Potter is amusing his friends with an account of a recent visit he paid to a Sunday school class presided over by a staid young clergyman. The bishop was asked to question the children so that he might be edified by their knowledge of matters Biblical. As a starter he said to a little girl whose face beamed with intelligence, "Who were the foolish virgins, my dear?"

"Them as didn't get married," was the prompt and emphatic answer.—New York Times.

How Harben's Host Solved a Difficulty—Author of "Adam Rush." (Special Correspondence.)

New York, March 16.—In his rambles among the people of northern Georgia, many of them primitive types and simple, specimens of humanity, Mr. Will N. Harben, author of "Abner Dandel," has met with many rare experiences which have yielded him rich material for his novels. He was once benighted in a mountain cabin where a family of five daughters and a mountaineer and his wife ate and slept in the only room the house contained.

With characteristic hospitality the farmer said the stranger was welcome if he would put up with things as they were. It was late, and as there was no other cabin in sight Mr. Harben accepted the kind offer with what grace he could summon. There were four beds in the room and no curtains, and the visitor wondered what they would do with him. They all sat cheerfully around the fire after supper, and about 9 o'clock the mountaineer said:

"I reckon me an' you'd better go down to the spring an' git us a drink."

At the spring the host obviously detained his guest for a few minutes, and on returning to the cabin they found it wrapped in darkness. The two men went in and slept in a bed together. Next morning, before dawn, the author was awakened from the most delightful sleep he had ever experienced. The mountaineer was bending over him.

"I reckon," the man said, "that me an' you'd better crawl out an' give the women folks a chance to git up an' cook breakfast."

Cutcliffe Hyne remarked recently that globe trotting having become so popular a pastime it behooved the modern novelist to gain a first hand acquaintance with whatever portion of the universe he had selected as the scene of a forthcoming story. Otherwise his statements might be challenged.

It is evident that A. E. W. Mason, author of "Miranda of the Balacony" and "The Four Feathers," is one of the same way of thinking. No sooner had he conceived the idea of "Miranda" than the author packed his bag and hid himself to Morocco, where he spent several months in gathering local color for the novel which made so great a success in Great Britain and which, adapted for stage use, seems to have served Mrs. Fiske well in this country. Most of "The Four Feathers" is laid in the Sudan, and Mr. Mason, whose three affidavits, by the way, stand for Alfred Edward Woodley, visited that region and explored it thoroughly before he put pen to paper.

A mild mannered, soft spoken man who beams genially on the world through gold rimmed glasses is Lynn Roby Meekins, author of "Adam Rush," one of the most successful novels of the year. In appearance he reminds one of Kipling. He has the same manner of thrusting his chin forward when listening or when watching things, the same manner of almost boyish interest in everything that goes on around him. Like Kipling, too, he is one of those reserved, silent men who see a great deal and say but little. These are the chaps, you know, who surprise us by their depth of insight into human character, by their quaint, dry wit and their sane, wholesome outlook on life. One of the delightful characters in "Adam Rush" is Simon Salt, a shrewd, epigrammatic country store keeper, probably drawn from some living individual whom Mr. Meekins studied at close range.

But for all his mild manners and habit of silence Mr. Meekins is far from being a dilettante dreamer. He is and has been for years actively engaged in the quiet work of journalism. For a period he was managing editor of the Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia, and at present he is editor in chief of the Baltimore Herald.

Another injustice to Marie Corelli, a paragraph has been going the rounds of the papers to the effect that Miss Corelli, with the assistance of a literary friend, has been engaged for nearly two years on a work largely of a biographical nature which will be published in the course of the next few months. Miss Corelli is very indignant about this, for she says she has not been so engaged, nor would she ever dream of accepting the assistance of any friend, literary or otherwise, in writing anything. And she declares that she is not and never will be a biographer either of her own life or of the lives of other people.

A HORSE AT THE SHOW.

Story of a Ribbon Winning From an Equine Viewpoint.

One of the popular features of the annual horse show in New York is the squad of park police horses that is always entered. The winning of a blue ribbon by one of these police horses is told in "Horses Nine," by Sewell Ford, from the viewpoint of the horse. The author says:

So it happened that one morning Skipper heard the sergeant tell Reddy that he had been detailed for the horse show squad. Reddy had saluted and said nothing at the time, but when they were once out on post he told Skipper all about it.

"Sure an' it's app'arin' before all the swells in town ye'll be, me b'y. Phat do ye think of that, eh? An' mebbe ye'll be gettin' a blue ribbon, Skipper, me lad, an' mebbe Mr. Patrick Martin will have a roundsman's berth an' chevrons on his sleeves afore the year's out."

The horse show was all that Reddy had promised, and more. The light almost dazzled Skipper. The sounds and the smells confused him, but he felt Reddy on his back, heard him chirrup softly and soon felt at ease on the tank.

Then there was a great crash of noise, and Skipper, with some fifty of his friends on the force, began to move around the circle. First it was four abreast, then by twos, and then a rush to troop front, when, in a long line, they swept around as if they had been harnessed to a beam by traces of equal length.

After some more evolutions a half dozen were picked out and put through their paces. Skipper was one of these. Then three of the six were sent to join the rest of the squad. Only Skipper and two others remained in the center of the ring. Men in queer clothes, wearing tall black hats, showing much white shirt front and carrying long whips, came and looked them over carefully.

Skipper showed these men how he could waltz in time to the music, and the people who banked the circle as far up as Skipper could see shouted and clapped their hands until it seemed as if a thunderstorm had broken loose. At last one of the men in tall hats tied a blue ribbon on Skipper's bridle.

When Reddy got him into the stable, he fed him four big red apples, one after the other. Next day Skipper knew that he was a famous horse. Reddy showed him their pictures in the paper.

The fleece of sheep imported from Europe into the West Indies is much affected and after the third generation the wool disappears from the whole body, except over the loins, and the animal then appears like a goat with a dirty doornat on its back.

Field of Sport.

The champion Pittsburg team beat Columbus Sunday by a score of 4 to 3, before a large crowd, considering the threatening weather conditions.

The field was a virtual quagmire and fast work was impossible.

Wagner pitched the first five innings, for Columbus, and he had the champions at his mercy. Wolfe who succeeded him also did well, but his miserable fielding lost the game for his team. Vail and Merritt two new recruits, did the pitching for the Pirates. Vail pitched great ball but Merritt was hit freely and great fielding alone saved him from a slaughter.

A great many from Newark saw the game, including George Fromholtz, Charles E. Courtier, John A. Chilcote, E. W. Crayton, George Graesser, Fred Deardurff, Joe Miller and others. The Newark contingent rooted consistently for the Pirates.

Deleahanty Goes to Washington.

Washington, April 13.—Edward J. Deleahanty, the premier batsman of the American League last year, and who is said to be responsible for the two big associations getting together along peace lines on account of his jumping a Washington contract, has made his peace with the local magnates and will again play ball with the Senators this season. "Del" has been in Washington for the past two weeks, and had grown very anxious over his future in the baseball world. Manager Loftus ignored his appeals for something definite until Saturday afternoon, when the two got together and after an hour's conference all the details were patched up. Deleahanty has agreed to return all advance money to the New York National League Club and will abide by his contract with the Washington club.
